

Sherrets . . . knocks symposium

Senators Criticize Recent SPO Actions

New Student Programming Organization (SPO) Chairman Gary Gilger began his term being attacked by members of the Student Senate Thursday evening.

At issue were two allocations made by SPO earlier in the week. One involved the spending of $75 for a symposium on homosexuality (to begin later this week), while the other point of contention was the $6,650 appropriated to La Causa, UNO's Chicano organization.

CCS Senator Frank Horna charged that the Chicano grant was too high, saying, "I feel that SPO may have spent a lot of money without a lot of thought."

Gilger seemingly concurred, saying that the proposal was passed "only after heated debate" with "four board members abstaining." He also noted that a move to reconsider the entire matter had been taken. A final decision on the Chicano expenditure was to have been reached at yesterday's SPO conclave.

The Chicano allocation, however, was not the only sore spot with the Senators. Arts and Sciences representative Jim Sherrets pounded the table in front of him and rose from his chair to blast the homosexual symposium as "an asinine thing to bring up at this time."

He charged that "rotten press" surrounding the symposium would help the cause of LB 362, the Unicameral measure which seeks to do away with student fees.

Gilger replied that the $75 was to be used for advertising purposes, not to pay the speakers for the symposium. All SPO monetary support for the symposium has since been dropped. He also pointed out that many of the speakers are to be ministers and that "Gary Bucchino (Omaha's City Prosecutor) is ready to come in and rap about it (homosexuality)."

The controversies nearly kept Gilger from being named to the SPO post later in the evening. Although he had been chosen for the job by his fellow board members and Student Body President Dave Parker, the Arts and Sciences Senior received some opposition when his appointment came to a vote of the Senate.

Symposium to Begin

Plans for the homosexual symposium tentatively scheduled to start Friday have already been subjected to much change, criticism and encouragement.

The initial announcement concerning the symposium, made in last Friday's Gateway, said that $75 had been allocated for the symposium by SPO. As matters now stand, the $75 has been rescinded.

Gary Eilts, SPO board member, said that "because of phone calls from state senators belligerently attacking the use of student funds for the symposium, the $75 will not be used in order to avoid conflict."

Eilts said that no money will be used to sponsor the symposium. "That means for advertising, paying the speakers or even providing coffee during the panel," he said.

Calls from people in Omaha and Lincoln who are "very anxious" to speak on the panels have been received by Eilts. Some feminist sectors have even asked for equal time.

"The more contacts I make, the more people become involved," Eilts said.

Roskens Defends Spending

By Larry King

Chancellor Ronald Roskens, speaking before over 200 faculty members last Thursday, defended recent administrative actions concerning the financing of instruction at UNO.

Roskens told his faculty audience in the Fine Arts Auditorium that 16 part-time instructors scheduled to teach classes in the College of Arts and Sciences this semester were let go as a precautionary curb on the rate of spending.

Income Drops

UNO's operating budget had to be cut, the chancellor said, because early financial reports this year show a probable drop in income from what was originally predicted. He gave three reasons for this drop:

First, "a marked reduction in the number of credit hours taken by students." Roskens said students are dropping courses for which they originally registered and the University must refund their money. He said this is a problem which raises the question of UNO's "holding power."

Concerning this problem, the chancellor announced that UNO will begin active advertising and recruiting of students. Roskens admitted that this may sound like "hucksterism" to some, but said UNO "has some excellent programs available and we must convey that fact to prospective students."

Residency

Roskens' second reason for the drop in income was that a larger number of persons than earlier estimated were able to establish Nebraska residency. This means they only have to pay $18 per credit hour rather than the $48 per hour non-resident tuition.

Third, "The escalating cost of fuel and other goods and services," he said, has also taken its financial toll.

Further compounding the problem, the chancellor explained, is the fact that UNO's accounting system, in a quandry since the 1968 merger of the University into the Nebraska system, hasn't been able to provide an accurate picture of the school's financial position.

"Don't Know"

"The plain fact of the matter," Roskens said, "is that we don't know the magnitude of the problem."

Reacting to some criticism on his choice of reducing manpower in faculty and not in administration, the chancellor said the administration is already understaffed, especially in the area of business and finance. He said many of the problems being experienced now are results of this shortage.

Roskens said full-time teachers will be used more extensively and efficiently to take the place of the lost part-timers.

Same Course

The chancellor said instances were discovered in the past where the same course was being taught by full-time instructors during the day that was being taught by part-time instructors at night and both classes had empty spaces.

Roskens also pointed out that the spending reductions must come from the instructional budget and that money from some other area of the University, such as administration or maintenance, could not be spend on instruction.

After the University's operating budget has been approved by the Legislature, he said, monies from one program can't be transferred to another.

Roskens also addressed himself to another area which has been of concern to some faculty members, the 1974 summer school budget. Some instructors had claimed that the summer school program was going

TV Power Boost?

By Patrice Mahon

When a football coach hears the word "signal" he thinks of a call that initiates action on the part of his offensive team, but when Paul Borge, director of KYNE-TV Channel 26 hears the word "signal" his concern is the electrical impulses that are transmitted or received over the air.

KYNE-TV, located on the UNO campus, is one of the nine stations that belong to the Nebraska Educational Television Network. The stations of the Nebraska ETV Network provide cultural and instructional programming for persons of all ages.

The only problem with Channel 26 is that it lacks the strength to transmit clearly into many metropolitan area homes.

After becoming aware of the problem, the Nebraska Legislature requested that the State Commission for Educational Television look into the prob-

Advertise Inefficiency?

It wasn't easy for Chancellor Roskens to do what he did last Thursday afternoon.

Approximately two hundred UNO instructors had settled down over in the Fine Arts Auditorium to hear the chancellor's explanation of the University's current money woes.

Though not an openly belligerent bunch, the teachers' unhappy attitude wasn't difficult to sense. Sixteen of their part-time counterparts had been cut earlier in the week, and the profs didn't seem to be in the mood for a belt-tightening lecture.

Considering the conditions, Roskens gave a laudable performance. He seemed to have done his financial homework and answered faculty questions with convincing candor.

The chancellor blamed the currency situation on an apparent drop in revenue due to large numbers of students quitting classes after completing only a portion of the semester.

Another possible cause, according to Roskens, is the fact that more students have been able to fulfill Nebraska residency requirements recently.

One solution proposed by Roskens was an extensive advertising program which would entice more students to UNO.

Though Roskens may envision himself as a modern day P.T. Barnum, it seems that this sort of logic is exactly what has caused the present mess. In his zeal to balance the UNO budget, Roskens seems to be forgetting the human element — he is examining the effect of the problem rather than its cause.

If students are dropping out of UNO in significant numbers, they must have a reason for doing so.

Instead of attempting to attract new students with jingles, tunes and flowery promises, the University should be expending maximum effort to give its present students the best possible education. Two wide areas that need to be improved before UNO does any boasting through the media are:

Class size — Instances of class sizes ranging in the hundreds are common here at UNO, and what worsens the situation is the fact that labs and higher level courses, which definitely require a low student/teacher ratio, are sometimes the worst offenders. Learning would be aided greatly if all students had personal contact with their professors.

Parking — A student can't attend a commuter university if he can't find a place to park. Despite some administration comments to the contrary, the parking situation at this university can be termed nothing but atrocious.

Even Campus Planner Rex Engebretson admits a need for three times the current space for parking. The sale of 6,492 parking stickers for 1,914 student spaces speaks for itself.

Homosexuals Bucking Odds J LETTERS E

Now that the state has seen the last of UNL's Big Red for awhile, betting action is on the wane.

Most bookmakers have pulled up stakes and moved south for the winter, but for those who remain there's some action in Omaha this week that could prove interesting.

Some of those "appalling liberals" at UNO are bringing in a homosexual conference, and the reactions of the citizenry should make for interesting speculation.

For example: Odds have been set at 2 to 1 that at least 1,000 irate citizens will write nasty letters about the way their tax money is being spent — despite the fact that none of the symposium's speakers are being paid.

Odds are 3 to 2 that at least a dozen politicians will release piously indignant statements attacking the symposium, while the betting line is 7 to 5 on whether those same politicians will actually take the time to attend it.

Up to the minute betting has set at "6" the number of speeches to be made within the next week which include the line, "Free speech is okay — as long as it agrees with the majority".

And finally, action is not being taken on whether there will continue to be "no place like Nebraska" — for that is a certainty.

No Guns

Dear Editor:

I don't give a damn if every policeman on the Campus Security force has a college degree in law enforcement; not all of them can possibly be skilled marksmen nor can any of them be free from emotionalism (e.g. nervousness) and occasional misjudgment.

The possibility that someone could be killed or wounded here at UNO sickens me. Arm the police on campus with guns? What disgusting insanity! Larry Smith

Neither A Fraternity Nor A Structured Club UNO Student Vets Organized to Help Others

By Dave Sink

Tucked away in a back hall on the first floor of the Student Center is the Veterans Affairs Office, established by Rusty Schwartz, now serving as its director.

Manning a desk inside the office is 23-year-old Pat Higgins, a combat veteran who is carving out a new life for himself at UNO. Pat serves as a volunteer worker, helping student veterans with various problems.

Like many other students who recently served in one of the branches of the military, Pat has faced the problem of re-adjusting not only to civilian life, but to an academic atmosphere he has not faced since high school.

According to Pat, the transition has not been difficult. "In my senior year of high school, I wasn't ready for college. I thought about enlisting. Then the army started calling me in for physicals. About the time I went down for my third physical, it looked like I was going to get drafted anyway. I decided to enlist."

"I'm better prepared for college now. I can put up with it. I don't think I could have before."

Vets Prepared

Pat's sentiments are echoed by Jeff Vanover, one of the youngest student veterans at the age of 20. Jeff, who served in the Marines, said:

"When I first got back, and decided to go to college, I thought that all of my friends from high school would be way ahead of me. As it turned out, a lot of them hadn't fared too well. I found I was right up with them."

Pat and Jeff are both very active on campus; it seems that young veterans as a group are more active than the average student.

Herman Colvin, a 4-year veteran of the Army, keeps his schedule busy by playing middle-line-backer on the UNO football Mavericks; that is, when he isn't working at his part-time job or looking after his young daughter.

Other young veterans have tried their hand at politics. The most successful of these is Rusty Schwartz, last year's student body president. Cliff Vogt served for a time on the Student Senate, while Pat Higgins ran an unsuccessful campaign for a senate seat.

Still others find themselves active in one of the campus's many clubs, such as Vietnam veteran Rick Newman, who is very active in ski club.

Financial Burdens

While the veterans have adjusted well to campus life, the financial problems of many are not so easily overcome.

Mike Friesen, a 23-year-old freshman, works alongside Pat Higgins in the Veteran Affairs Office. He finds the financial strain of getting through college tough.

Mike goes to school on the GI Bill. Each month, he receives a check from the Veterans Administration for $220. This amount has to cover the cost of tuition and books, as well as pay for the necessities of life.

After the cost of tuition and books is subtracted from the veteran's monthly check, he is asked to live on less than unemployment compensation would provide him (the state of Nebraska pays a maximum of $52 a week unemployment, or $208 a month).

Commenting on the veterans' financial situation, Mike said, "Probably 75% of the veterans on campus are married. So a lot of them go to school while their wives work. If you have that kind of arrangement, you can probably make it. But if you're single, it's just about impossible."

"Take my own expenses, for instance. Every month I pay $75 for rent, and another $15 for heat. I have a car payment of $80. There's $170 of the $220 right there, and that doesn't cover food, tuition, books, or clothes."

Possible Increase

Congress is currently considering an increase of $50 a month to student veterans, but nothing has been decided yet. Meanwhile, many young vets are operating on a very tight budget.

Because they share such common problems, young veterans are more organized this year.

The Veterans Affairs Office serves as a source of orientation for the incoming veteran student. It performs other functions as well.

According to staff worker Mike Friesen, "Most frequently we'll get a veteran in here whose check didn't show up. There are any number of ways the system can get fouled up, but we can help him find out where the problem is, and save him maybe three or four weeks in which he might otherwise have to wait for the check."

According to Mike, the office also serves as a valuable referral agency and information dissemination center.

While veterans take many of their financial problems to the Veterans Affairs Office, quite a few are turning to the Collegiate Veterans Club to help establish a better social life.

Rapid Growth

Jeff Vanover, director of public relations for the Collegiate Veterans, says that the club is gaining momentum.

"At the beginning of this school year, the Collegiate Veterans was a dead group. I think we had maybe three members. We had to completely reorganize."

"Now things are moving. We have over 30 members and are growing fast."

Jeff explained the concept behind the Collegiate Veterans.

"We're an informal organization. We don't want to be as structured as a fraternity. We just got out of the service, and we're pretty tired of structure. But we do want enough organization to be effective."

The Collegiate Veterans have sponsored several social events, one in conjunction with the Pen and Sword Society. They semester an active one.

At this point, the Collegiate membership and finances of Society of the Pen and Sword strapper fellowship.

Vets at a Glance...

It's a typical day... kind of. Collegiate Veterans' Club President Dan Webster (left) is greeted by Sam Brune, (right) who mans the desk in the Vet's office.

Today's agenda includes such things as pausing for "Gateway pictures," helping locate missing checks for club members and sorting through mountains of paper work.

Among problems to tackle is the tight financial situation student vets find themselves in. Rent, utilities, car payments, tuition, books — the list is endless, and vets have to find some way of making ends meet.

All in all, vets live on less than those receiving unemployment compensation in Nebraska, but Congress is considering a $50 a month increase in payments to student vets.

Pen and Sword Society. They plan to make this semester an active one.
At this point, the Collegiate Veterans lack the membership and finances of a group like the Society of the Pen and Sword, the official boot-strapper fellowship.
Pen and Sword maintains an office, a test file, and a legendary teacher evaluation file. Their membership is in the hundreds.
Though the Collegiate Veterans lack these at the present time, their plans are to work toward them in the near future.

From the Unicameral

By Joanne Stewart

President of UNO's Student Veterans Dan Webster said Saturday he expected his group to support drafting of legislation providing bonuses for those who served in the military between 1964 and 1974.
Webster explained that it first must be okayed by the members, but added "It's a good thing (the bonus bill) so we will probably actively support it."
The proposal is being offered by Mrs. Craig Enenbach, whose husband is on active duty with the military and a full-time student at UNO. She is leading a group seeking to develop interest in the introduction of such a bill in the Unicameral.
"Our group's purpose is actually two-fold. Of course we want veterans to know there is a group pushing legislation for Vietnam bonuses, but we also want to make servicemen aware of the legislation already on the books available to them," stated Mrs. Enenbach.
Mrs. Enenbach said that presently 20 states, including Iowa, give bonuses but don't have any other benefits available for servicemen. She explained the bonus would probably be a cash award or a savings bond.
"The benefits would be for anyone who served in that 10-year period. If they (veterans) were in the service, it should be about $200; if they were in Vietnam, $300; if they were wounded while overseas, $500."

The Nebraska Veterans Aid Fund offers financial help, she explained. With the approval of a service-officer, a veteran can receive money to pay for such needs as rent, house payment and utility or hospital bills.
The existence of such an aid program could prevent the passage of the bonus bill according to Webster. He added that similar legislation has "never passed the committee hearing because the Aid Fund is there to help the serviceman."
Mrs. Enenbach said her group hopes to have the bonus in addition to the aid available for veterans. "We don't want to have to replace the one for the other."
Anyone interested in promoting the bill may contact her or write Omaha Senator Ernest Chambers, who chairs the Government Military and Veterans Affairs Committee. The bill must pass his committee before it can be considered by the Unicameral.
"Senator Chambers is not a veteran but he'll bend over backwards for the serviceman," Mrs. Enenbach concluded. "But he'll need proof that people are interested in and support such a bill before he can begin."

'Cabaret' Crowd A Boost to SPO

Comments like "Would you look at these lines!" And "I hope I find a seat!" rambled through the lines of students gathered Friday night to see "Cabaret".
However, even the milling crowds were not enough to prompt SPO action. "I don't see why they don't show the movie twice," grumbled one bearded student.
Because, according to Bob Beraldi, SPO film co-ordinator, the $10,000 SPO film budget doesn't provide for both Friday and Saturday night showings.
More important, though, is the profit aspect: "Cabaret" came with a $500 rental fee per showing. For an additional showing, add $250 to that sum. With two week-end showings of the same movie, said Beraldi, profits made from the movie might diminish, then who would foot the bill?

Another problem stems with personnel to run the projector. The audio-visual department staff isn't required to work Saturday, which of course, would hinder Saturday night showings.
There is an advantage, however. And that, said Beraldi, is the large audiences Friday movies draw. A second night show might reduce attendance.

Trackmen Set Record

UNO Wins In Romp Over South Dakota

by Kevin Carolan

The Maverick track team, winning all 14 events on the program, romped over the University of South Dakota (USD), 109-12, last Friday evening in the UNO fieldhouse.

The fact that the Mavericks went over 100 points in dual competition is believed to be a school record. Both head coach Lloyd Cardwell and assistant coach Jim McMahon cannot recall any scores over 100. Fred Gerardi, UNO Sports Information Director said, "It will take some time to check through our records but it is unlikely that we will find any other dual competition with a score as high as tonight's".

USD Coach Dan Lennon praised the UNO squad and indicated that it is perhaps the finest track team Cardwell has produced. "Some of his freshmen are going to be great, and it is a pleasure to watch George Davis (440 yd dashman) run," Lennon said.

The Mavericks jumped off to a 27-8 lead after the field event competition. Bob Buchta, a surprise winner in the shot put, had his best toss of the young season, (a 45'5" heave) to win over USD's Fred Lehman (42'11½") and teammate Gerald Bender (41¾").

Tom Schrad, the Maverick's only high jumper this year, won his speciality with a leap of 6'4¼". Mark Neuman (USD) was second and John Christensen (SD) finished third. Tim Brechbill edged teammate Jack Cooney in the pole vault giving the Mavericks a 1-2 finish in that event. Both cleared 13 feet but Brechbill was declared the winner on fewer misses. The Mavericks also got a 1-2 finish in the long jump, an event the Mavericks were weak in last year. Freshman Yeoman Smith leaped 22'2½" and Don Harris 21'6½" to add eight more points to the UNO score. John Christensen (USD) was third with a leap of 20'7½".

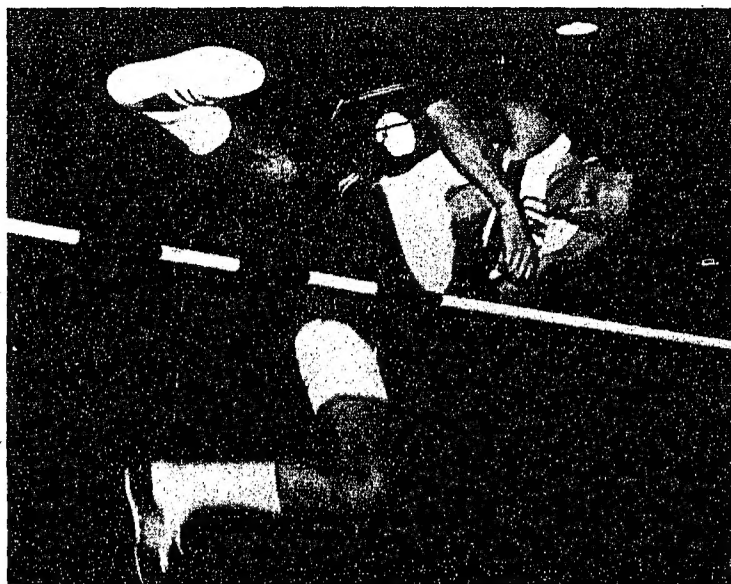

Again it was two freshmen, Barney Hill and Bob Garcia, who gave the Maverick thinclads a 1-2 finish in the mile run, the first running event of the evening. The two runners ran neck and neck throughout the race with Hill edging Garcia by two-tenths of a second for the win. Hill was timed in 4:27.1 and Garcia in 4:27.3. Mike Clifford (USD) was third in 4:28.1.

It was a good night for the Maverick dashmen and hurdlers as the UNO runners swept the 60 yard dash and both hurdle events. Senior Dan Cutler edged teammates Bill Moore and Don Harris to win the 60 in 6.5. Moore and Harris were both timed in 6.6.

Frank Borowiak led the sweep in the 60 yard high hurdles with a clocking of 7.9 seconds. Doug Mann and Kevin Rippey, both freshmen, were second and third respectfully. Each had an 8.0 second clocking. The order was reversed somewhat in the 176 yard intermediate hurdles as Rippey (22.4) edged Borowiak (22.9) for the win. Mann was third with a 23.5 clocking.

The win for Rippey established a new varsity and Fieldhouse Record as it was the first time the event was run at UNO.

In the 600 yard run junior Greg Rosenbaum edged freshman Bruce Westerlin with 1:15.0 and 1:16.0 clockings respectively. Ed Jackson (USD) was third in 1:17.6. Rosenbaum and Westerlin then came back to tie each other in the 880 yard run as they finished hand in hand with a time of 2:02.6. Steve Schrad, improving with every race, led the pack of seven runners for the first 800 yards only to falter in the last 80. Schrad did manage to hold on to preserve a third place finish with a time of 2:04.5.

Team captain George Davis, coming off a record breaking performance at Doane last week, missed the UNO fieldhouse record by seven-tenths of a second in leading the Mavericks to a sweep in the 400 yard dash. Davis was timed in 51.0 while Gary Bragdon and Bob Anderson finished second and third with times of 51.6 and 52.7 respectively.

Freshman Bill Melton held off three attempts by teammate Jack Schroer to win the gruelling two-mile run with a time of 9:38.8, well under his last week's time of 10:10.1. Schroer, who laid off practice over the semester break to visit relatives in California, was second with a time of 9:40.3. It was his first race of the young season. Mike Clifford (USD) was third, well behind Melton and Schroer.

In the 1,000 yard run, veteran middle-distance runner Tom Mahr beat out the fieldhouse record holder Mark Wayne, to give the Mavericks a 1-2 finish in that event. Mahr was timed in 2:17.2 while Wayne ran 2:19.8. USD's Bill Shaw finished third with a time of 2:20.0.

The mile relay saw the quartet of George Davis, Bob Anderson, Neil Greenberg, and Gary Bragdon completely dominated the event by winning in the time of 3:28.8. USD's time was 3:40.5.

A special mile relay race saw the Maverick "B" team beat the USD's "B" team with a 3:35.7 clocking. Sam Evans, Bill Moore, Barney Hill, and Dan Cutler made up the "B" team.

Coach Cardwell was very pleased with the win and stated, "This is the best physically fit track team we have had at UNO." Cardwell was well pleased with the performance of his freshmen, six of whom won events.

Some of the Maverick trackmen will be on the road next week when Coach Cardwell takes a 13 man contingent to Oklahoma City to participate in the US Track and Field Federation Meet.

Defense Aids Mavericks

by Dave Coullon

The UNO Mavericks, switching their second half defense between a man-to-man and a zone, stifled the Northern Michigan offense and pulled out a 72-60 victory Saturday evening.

UNO Coach Bob Hanson said he changed his defense to break up the Northern Michigan shuffle offense. The Mavericks started the second half with the 1-3-1 defense. The Wildcats of Northern Michigan, unable to run their offense, then called time out to adjust for Hanson's change.

Hanson, to keep the Wildcats off balance, went back to the man-to-man defense. The Wildcats never did go back to their shuffle offense as UNO continued to mix-up its defense.

It was a tough, physical game for the Mavericks, marred by a total of 54 fouls, 33 against the opposition. "We always try to play a physical game in that we try to be aggressive," claimed Hanson.

The fouls hurt the Northern Michigan squad which lost four players due to infractions.

Coach Hanson concluded, "It's nice to win when you're flat." The comment was based on UNO's poor showing at the offset of the game. Hanson felt the reason for the poor start was the fact that the Mavericks were tired after a tough week on the road.

The Northern Michigan game was the third game in five days for the Maverick squad, as they lost to Oral Roberts, 111-79, and to Louisiana State-New Orleans, 84-71, earlier in the week.

Turnovers and poor shooting accounted for the cold start the Mavericks had early in the first half and the Wildcats pulled out to an 8-1 lead in the early going. The Mavericks didn't hit their first field goal until 6:32 of the first half when Kevin Nelson tipped in a shot.

UNO pulled within three point, 7-10, when another cold streak hit the squad. It was another 5.53 before the Mavericks were able to hit another field goal. UNO stayed in contention during that period mostly on the free-throw shooting of sophomore Kevin Nelson.

Nelson, coming off the bench early in the first half, hit seven freethrows during the cold streak. Steve Flemming, another reserve, added another two.

Ironically, UNO tied the game twice in the non-field goal streak, 10-10 and 12-12. Before the streak ended the Wildcats pushed their lead back up to six points, 22-16.

Nelson gave UNO its first lead in the ball game at 1.49 with a jump shot from the top of the key, but it was Roehrig's lay-up with 19 seconds remaining that put UNO ahead for good. The Mavericks ended the half with a slim 32-31 lead.

Nelson led the cagers in scoring at the half with 13 points while Roehrig had 8.

The Mavericks came in complete control of the second half; Coach Hanson indicated his cagers played much better during the second half of the game.

UNO led the rest of the way but the game remained close till the 4:01 mark when Dennis Fisher's fastbreak bucket gave the Mavericks a 63-51 lead.

Five UNO players reached double figures. Cal Forrest and Nelson led the team with 16 points. Steve Fleming and Pat Roehrig had 12 each, while Dennis Fisher had 11. Forrest scored 12 of his 16 points in the second half while Fisher had all 11 of his points in the last half also.

Roehrig and Nelson led the Maverick rebounders with 12 and 10 points respectively.

Jim Edmonds led the Northern Michigan scoring with 21 points while Dave Greer had 11 points and 5 rebounds. Willie Brown led the Wildcats in rebounding with 7.

Down in New Orleans, UNO got off to a bad start against the LSU Privateers, and the host school took full advantage of the situation to jump out to a 41-26 halftime lead.

In the second half, the Mavericks, not willing to accommodate the host team, rallied behind the shooting of senior Cal Forrest and junior Steve Fleming to pull within 6 points with 12 minutes remaining.

With the score 55-49, the Privateer's clamped down on the Mavericks defensively and got their offense back in gear by scoring 10 unanswered points, boosting the LSU lead back up to 16 points.

The Mavericks were unable to pull any closer than 12 points the rest of the way and wound up on the short end of the 84-71 score.

The Mavericks are back on the road this week-end facing Southern Colorado in Pueblo, Saturday night. The UNO squad has a 76-60 win over the Indians in a game played earlier this season.

Kevin Nelson . . . hits for two.

Wayne St. Capitalizes On Gals Mistakes

Wayne State, capitalizing on UNO mistakes and cold shooting, took a 55-37 decision over the Maverick gals in a game played in the UNO fieldhouse last Sunday.

UNO took a early 11-6 lead on the strength of Judy Melius's outside shooting only to see Wayne St. tie the game at 18-18 with 1:49 remaining in the half. Wayne St. then scored seven straight points on layups by Mary Steinauer and Sally Hanna, and free throws by defensive standout Martha Schrick, to give the Wildcats a 25-18 halftime lead.

From then on it was all Wayne St. The Wildcats continued to increase their lead over the Maverick gals and had a comfortable 39-27 lead at the end of the third stanza.

Wayne St., going to the fast break in the final period, increased their lead to 47-30 with 4:33 remaining in the game. Poor ball handling, along with cold shooting, prevented the UNO gals from mounting any offense and Wayne St. pulled away to a 55-37 win.

Wayne State's record jumped to 4-1, while the Mavericks evened their record at 3-3. The Mavericks', Judy Melius led all scorers with 16 points while Mary Stienauer and Peg Henrichsen had 12 each for the winners.

The UNO gals are in action again tonight at the UNO fieldhouse when they face the gals from Creighton University.

lem and recommend solutions.

One likely solution to the problem is to increase the power of the already present tower on the UNO campus.

Channel 26 currently serves persons in a 20-25 mile viewing area. Although the new addition to the station wouldn't increase greatly the viewing area, it would provide a strengthening of the frequency for clearer viewing.

According to Borge the current rated power of the transmitter is 2 kilowatts (kw), but with the new transmitter it would increase to 60 kw. The current maximum radiated power is 38.9 kw. visual, while the new addition, if approved, would provide a maximum radiated power of 1,000,000 kw. visual.

Borge added, "KUON-TV Channel 12 in Lincoln adequately serves 203,918 persons in an Omaha metropolitan area which totals 453,151 people, this leaves 249,233 persons who could be better served by Channel 26 if the proposed program were to go into effect."

Borge estimated that the cost for such a program, including new transmitters and the extension of the antenna would be $380,000.

The in-school day and night programming would benefit through the increasing of the signal strength allowing more children and teachers greater access because of clearer view-to be used as a money-maker, generating over $5.00 in tuition for every $3.00 in teacher salaries earned.

Summer School

At last Wednesday's meeting, the Faculty Senate passed a resolution recommending that the UNO administration take action on the summer school budget so that the summer school program would do no more than pay its own way.

The resolution compared the UNO summer budget to that of UNL, which it said doesn't generate as much revenue.

Roskens explained the discrepancy as nothing more than a difference in bookkeeping methods. He said UNO shows much of its summer expenses on the regular year's budget, while UNL shows most of its summer expenses on the summer budget. This, he said, makes it look like UNO isn't spending as much on its summer program.

Wilson Satisfied

The president of the Faculty Senate, Dr. Wayne Wilson, said

ing and the public would have a choice of either Channel 12 or 26 for their educational and public broadcasting programming.

The proposal has been given to the Legislature and with their support the project could be completed within one to two years.

he was satisfied with the chancellor's explanation of the summer school budget.

"I have to accept his explanation," he said. "I'm not in a position to know the way the books are handled."

He said he didn't think the Senate would take any more action on the matter as the chancellor was in accord with the resolution's request that the administration take action to rectify the summer budget problems.

Roskens asked the faculty for their continued understanding as time went on.

"We're now reaping a harvest of accumulated problems and inadequacies," he said, "and our people are feverishly working to get things worked out."

"In the meantime," he concluded, "we must expect to continue a curb on spending."

The first tally was 14-4 (with seven senators abstaining), a margin short of the two-thirds apparently needed for approval.

However, following a series of rulings by Senate Speaker Jim Nicas and a plea by CCS representative Stan Vanoy, a second vote was taken. Gilger was approved 17-5 with three abstaining.

FREE UNIVERSITY CATALOGUE 1974

WHAT IS A FREE UNIVERSITY?

As many students realize, traditional university curriculums only cover a small area of education. Since learning is a constant process involving more than the simple academic areas usually offered, activist students during the 1960's developed Free University to fill in the academic gaps of a traditional university curriculum.

At UNO, the Student Government is offering, through the Academic Resources Center, a number of Free University courses designed to meet the interests of our constituents. Teachers for these courses are volunteers willing to share their special interests and knowledge with members of the university community.

HOW MUCH MONEY DOES THIS COST?

None — Free University is free. All administrative and publicity costs are absorbed by the Academic Resources Center.

Student President Supports Campus Drinking Proposal

By Ed Fitzgerald

For those students feeling the need for a quick beer between all those classes, classes, classes... a remedy may be in sight.

There is now a proposal in committee at the Nebraska Unicameral that would allow on-campus selling and consumption of alcoholic liquor, according to Student Body President, Dave Parker.

"Creighton initiated the proposal, but we'll be doing a lot of work for it and so will Lincoln," Parker said.

One of Parker's ideas to insure the bills passage was to have students write to their senators favoring the bill. An information and letter-writing table will be set up outside of the Student Government office, he said.

"We don't want it to look organized, but we will mail the letters for the students," he stated.

"A lot of possibilities open up when you think about having alcohol on campus," Parker said.

Some of the possibilities mentioned by Parker included being able to drink at football games, SPO events and at the Student Center in the late afternoon or evening.

"I'm not saying that SPO is dependent upon beer, but if everyone knew they could have it on campus, there would be an increase in attendance," Parker claimed.

But even if, or when, the bill becomes law, Parkers feels we will have to wait and "see how the administration looks at it".
